

BULLYING IS SO NOT IN FASHION

Singing sensation Sarah De Bono will surprise students at Freshwater Bay Primary School on Friday 31 August at their 9.30am assembly to discuss her personal experience of bullying and perform an acoustic song, all as part of the Hawaiian Alive program.

Freshwater Bay Primary School has a strong anti-bullying pastoral care system and is excited to have Sarah De Bono share this message with their students. Her hit song "Beautiful" from her album 'No Shame' was inspired by her own encounters of being bullied during her school years.

Freshwater Bay Principal Mr Stephen Ivey said "We have a fantastic spirit of fun, laughter and vibrancy at Freshwater Bay and we believe that education should be enjoyable for all children. Children have a right to be safe and happy as they learn. By taking a community approach to behaviours such as bullying, we build a shared responsibility - giving courage to our students to support each other and create a cooperative, safe school environment."

The visit has been organized by WA property group Hawaiian (who own the local Claremont Quarter) as part of the Hawaiian Alive program which offers communities the opportunity to win free, unique and exclusion excursions and activities to help develop their members' potential in the areas of arts, sport, music, personal development and life skills.

"We are aware that schools often have limited resources, so Hawaiian Alive offers students a range of enriching excursions and activities," said Russell Gibbs, Hawaiian Chief Executive Officer.

"At Hawaiian, we value the opportunity to give to the communities we live and work in, and this program is a great way to do that do this by enhancing the school experience for our young people."

Teachers and members of community groups can register to be a part of Hawaiian Alive by visiting <http://www.hawaiianalive.com.au/>.
